PRIOR PRACTICAL ADVICE

*Please, take into account that Granada's bars are not usually big. We recommend you to split into small groups before trying to get a place for twenty people, and to arrive early. As a reference, most of the bars open between 20:00-20:30 for dinner, being 20:30 the most common hour for many of them.

We have selected different places near the city centre and the Conference Venue area, but of course, there are many more options than the ones presented here. Check Trip Advisor to look for other options.

We are suggesting different options depending on attendees' diverse preferences (less formal or more formal). Take into account that having dinner at tapas' bars (the informal way) usually consists of ordering several rounds of drinks that include in the price a portion of food (tapa), and maybe also some plates to share (raciones). Some bars offer the clients the option to choose what they want as a tapa, and other places don't. In case you attend a bar where tapas are not chosen and you have any meal restriction (gluten intolerant, vegetarian...etc.) tell the waiter/waitress in advance. Unfortunately vegan choices are going to be more limited in a regular bar. At tapas' bars you cannot always be sat and usually is not possible to make reservations in advance. Of course, it is a cheaper way to eat, and it is very typical Grenadian. On the other hand, we have also included other type of restaurants that are not tapas' bars. The different places have been marked with €, €, €, etc., —low, medium, high...—depending on how expensive they are according to Granada's prices, and have been divided into categories (traditional, exotic, vegetarian and vegan...).

*Paying separately in Spain when you are part of a group is nearly impossible. Therefore, make sure to bring cash when you go out: that will facilitate sharing the bill easily. Paying by credit card is totally fine at restaurants but not possible at all tapas' bars (specially when the bill is very low). Make sure to know the payment options before ordering.

-----TRADITIONAL-----

BODEGAS ESPADAFOR (€€)

This is one of the oldest taverns in town. The family that owns the bar has a long tradition as wine makers, and the establishment still keeps the classic charm of the first decades of 20th century. You can come here if you want to taste the real traditional tapas. It's also a good and cheap place to have breakfast.

Calle Tinajilla s/n, 18001

BODEGAS CASTAÑEDA (€€)

A very typical bar to have a beer or a glass of wine, it is the classic choice around Plaza Nueva. We would recommend ordering their cold or hot boards, which consist of a variety of cheeses, cold cuts or tapas. A nice place to try Trevelez hams from the Alpujarras mountains in Granada. Keep in mind that it is a busy bar.

Calle Almircecos, 1-3, 18010

BODEGAS LA MANCHA (€-€€)

Another old tavern that is interesting to try for a quick beer, homemade vermouth or local original wines like Palo Cortao. Recommended as a part of a bar crawl (since you eat standing up, like the old style). Try their “croquetas” and “flamenquines” and remember to request your tapa. Don’t be scared of the used napkins that clients throw on the floor, unfortunately it is a habit that keeps existing in some old taverns.
